

(d) Amendments to the Claims

1,2. (Cancelled)

3. (Currently amended) The method of claim 25, further comprising, after receiving a message from a recipient addressed to the first alias email address:

- (a) selecting by the user of the Reply function of the an email client program;
- (b) inputting of a reply message by the user;
- (c) transmitting of the user's reply message to the Alias email server;
- (d) stripping of the user's reply message of all information which could identify the user's physical email address by the Alias email server; and
- (e) forwarding the stripped reply message to the recipient.

4. (Previously Presented) The method of claim 3, further comprising a displaying of a log of a multiplicity of transactions to the user by the client control program, the log further comprising:

- (a) the time and date of each transaction;
- (b) the first alias email address of each transaction; and
- (c) the identification information of the transaction, and further comprising sorting the log according to a plurality of sort standards, the standards further comprising date of creation, date of reception, status, and number received.

5. Cancelled

6. (Previously Presented) The method of claim 4, wherein the generating of the alias email address further comprises substantially random character generating.

7. (Original) The method of claim 6, further comprising entering one or more additional physical email addresses into the client control program, and receiving an additional alias email address corresponding to each additional physical email address.

8. (Original) The method of claim 7, further comprising entering a request by the client control program for one or more additional alias addresses corresponding to each physical address, and receiving by the client control program an additional alias email address corresponding to each such request.

9. (original)The method of claim 8, further comprising entering a request by the client control program to suspend forwarding by the alias email server to the email client program of all email addressed to a particular alias email address.

10. (Original) The method of claim 9, further comprising entering a request by the client control program to permanently discontinue receipt by the email client program of all email addressed to a particular alias email address.
11. (Original) The method of claim 10, further comprising generating by the client control program of an alias email address containing a user name, and filtering the email at the Alias email Server.
12. Cancelled
13. through 23. (Cancelled)
24. Cancelled.
25. (Currently Amended) The method of claim [[24]] 29, further comprising transmitting by the user a message to two or more recipients using the same alias first email address and the same identification information. [[.]]
26. (Currently Amended) The method of claim 25, wherein the filter commands further comprise:
 - (a) rejecting all messages addressed to the first alias email address at the alias email server;
 - (b) suspending receipt of all messages addressed to the first alias email address by the alias email server; and
 - (c) restoring receipt of all messages addressed to the first alias email address at the alias email server . [[;]]

27. (Currently Amended) The method of claim 26, further comprising:

(a) ~~generating of a~~ entering one or more additional alias email addresses and identification information associated with each such additional alias email address by the user ~~method of claim 25.~~ ;

(b) generating a log by the client control program, and displaying the log to the user, the log comprising, for each alias email address [],[];

(i) the date of the generation of the alias email address;
(ii) the alias email address; and
(iii) the corresponding identification information.

28. (Currently Amended) The method of claim 27, whereby

(a) the email messages further comprise a subject and a body; and

(b) the ~~user~~ identification information comprises a first identification message and a second identification message, and whereby the method further comprises :

(i) appending by the alias email server of the first identification message to the ~~subject of the email~~ ~~forwarded to the user~~; and

(ii) appending by the alias email server of the ~~first~~ second identification message to the ~~body of the email~~ ~~forwarded to the user~~.

29. (New) In a computer data communications network, a method for a user to control and organize email, the user having a physical email address, the method comprising the steps of:

- (a) entering of the physical email address, corresponding identification information, and filter commands into the client control program by the user;
- (b) transmitting the physical email address, the filter commands, and the corresponding identification information, to the alias email server;
- (c) storing the physical email address, the filter commands, and the corresponding identification information, in the alias email server;
- (d) automatically generating a first alias email address by the alias email server, not comprising the physical address, and not comprising a recipient address, and storing said first alias email address in the alias email server;
- (e) transmitting the first alias email address by the alias email server to the client control program;

(f) transmitting a message comprising the first alias email address as a sender address to a recipient;

(g) receiving by the alias email server of a reply message addressed to the first alias email address; and

(h) if the stored filter commands do not cause the alias email server to block the reply message, then forwarding by the alias email server of the reply message, together with the identification information, to the user's physical address, so that the recipient is unaware of the user's physical email address, and the user is apprised of the first alias email address and the corresponding identification information of said reply message.